ArtShare for HeartShare is an art exhibit showcasing the creative talents and abilities of artists with autism and other developmental disabilities. This year's show features over 80 works of art and photos, as well as handmade jewelry, created by more than 50 artists who participate in HeartShare's programs.

The goal of the exhibit is to encourage the artists to express themselves creatively and in meaningful ways while raising awareness of developmental disabilities among the general public.

Celebrating its 96th year, HeartShare is a nonprofit organization that assists nearly 30,000 New Yorkers. Its wide array of services assist individuals with autism spectrum disorders and other developmental disabilities through numerous programs including education services, adult day programs, residential services, case management, recreation programs, family support services, and health services. It also provides counseling, after-school programs and assistance with foster care and adoption to children and families, supports people affected by HIV/AIDS, and administers low-income energy assistance programs.
