Backpack Giveaway

(Brooklyn, NY)— Recently, HeartShare Human Services of New York received 50 backpacks stuffed with school supplies from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) Brooklyn Branch. On hand for the celebration were Brooklyn Borough President Marty Markowitz and New York City Schools Chancellor Joel Klein.

HeartShare distributed the backpacks to children in its foster care and family counseling programs. The children were very thankful for the backpacks and new school supplies. It will help ensure they get off on the right foot this academic year.
